

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus that do not require a memory between the combiner and decision boundary estimator in a digital communications receiver and that enjoy unaltered performance are described. The methods and apparatus include new ways
5 of estimating bit decision boundaries and may also include new ways of estimating soft bit values.